The instruments of the orchestra by sight, sound, and story

A constructive aid for teaching music in the schools

This plan of orchestral instrument study consists of:

18 charts (14" x 22"), showing the instruments in absolute accuracy of color and detail;

Two Victor double-face records (Nos. 35670 and 35671 or 35236 and 35237), which give the tone color of every instrument in appropriate excerpts;

A handbook, giving full description and history of the instruments and their uses by composers.

These three units together offer for the first time in the history of public school music a practical means for the complete study of the instruments of the orchestra by sight, sound,
and story.
